ARC, manufacturer of components for professional cooking and part of the Sabaf Group, presents the Epicure Series 12 burners that bring the professional level to the domestic market. Thanks to the horizontal Venturi, these products can be inserted in small spaces thus allowing to equip a domestic hob or cooker with high performance components. Epicure has cast iron body and brass burner cap. The power varies according to the size but, in any case, high efficiency and high performance are guaranteed. The aesthetic is elegant and with possibility of customization: in fact, different finishes and combinations of surface treatment are available. Epicure is offered also to the world of the professional cooking, in particular the version with the vertical Venturi. "The Epicure Series 12 burners – explained Loris Gasparini, ARC General Manager – have been designed for those who love cooking and want to have professional tools in their home that allow them to obtain great performance and therefore great results. They are unusual-looking burners, almost all double ring, with solid and robust materials, made to last for a long time, and performances similar to those we offer to the restaurants: so a passionate about cooking has a serious work tool that allows to create both simple recipes and elaborate dishes".
